

Eisenhower Willing To Meet With Bulganin Highlights Of Letter By Ike

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Following are the highlights of President Eisenhower's letter to Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin today:

Professions of peace by governmental leaders have not always been a dependable guide to their actual intentions. Moreover, it seems to me to be profitless for us to debate the question of which of our two governments want peace the more.

In this country the people exert such constitutional control over government that no government could possibly initiate aggressive war. Under authority already given by our Congress, the United States can and would respond at once if we or any of our allies were attacked.

It is natural that any who want to impose their system on the world should prefer that those outside the system should be weak and divided. But that expansionist policy cannot be sanctified by protestations of peace.

1. Never will the United States lend its support to any aggressive action by any collective defense organization or any member thereof.

2. Always will the United States be ready to move toward the development of effective United Nations collective security measures in replacement of regional collective defense measures.

I am compelled to conclude after the most careful study of your proposals that they seem to be unfortunately incomplete or inconsistent in their meaning and inadequate as a program for productive negotiations for peace.

These proposals do not serve to meet the real problem of armament. . . . Surely, Mr. Chairman, at a time when we share great responsibility for shaping the development of the international situation, we can and must do better than you propose.

I propose that we should make it the policy of our two governments at least not to use veto power to prevent the Security Council from proposing methods for the pacific settlement of disputes.

If confidence is to be restored, there needs, above all, to be confidence in the pledged word. To us it appears that such confidence is lamentably lacking.

I propose that we agree that outer space should be used only for peaceful purposes.

Let us also end the now unrestrained production of nuclear weapons. . . . Also existing stocks can be steadily reduced. . . . Since our existing weapons stocks are doubtless larger than yours we would expect to make greater transfer than you to peaceful purposes stocks. . . .

I propose that. . . we stop the testing of nuclear weapons, not just for two or three years, but indefinitely.

Let us at the same time take steps to begin the controlled and progressive reduction of conventional weapons and military manpower.

I also renew my proposal that we begin progressively to take measures to guarantee against the possibility of surprise attack.

The capacity to verify the fulfillment of commitments is of the essence in all these matters. . . . And it would surely be useful for us to study together through technical groups what are the possibilities in this respect upon which we could build if we then decide to do so.

I too believe that such personal contacts can be of value. . . . but meetings between us do not automatically produce good results. Preparatory work, with good will on both sides, is a prerequisite to success.

Truman Raps President On Three Counts

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said today President Eisenhower was a great military commander because "he had someone to tell him what to do."

Truman also told newsmen, "I do not think Eisenhower is a good policymaker, nor is he a good budgetmaker."

Interviewed in a hotel lobby, Truman said the President "was a great military commander in Europe and in NATO, when he had someone to tell him what to do."

A reporter asked Truman, "Who told him what to do? Was it you?" "The commander in chief," Truman replied.

"You were commander in chief," Truman was reminded. "Yes," the former President said.

Truman said a good policymaker "is one who knows where he is going and carries out his program; Eisenhower doesn't carry out the policies that he proposes."

"Too Late"

On the President's State of the Union message, Truman said Eisenhower "is about three years too late with his proposals."

Tonight he speaks before the World Academy of Jerusalem and tomorrow at the Overseas Press Club.

Truman also said Eisenhower should be able to curtail rivalry among the defense services.

"I didn't have any trouble, as they understood who was commander in chief," he said. "Eisenhower should be able to handle the military, as no one has had more experience than he."

Truman then said, "I tried to make a coordinated military setup, but there were some in Washington who felt they would lose power if the services were coordinated." He did not elaborate.

Truman rapped the proposal by George F. Kennan, his former ambassador to Moscow, that the Western Powers should withdraw their troops from Europe in return for a Russian withdrawal to her own borders. Kennan made the proposal during a recent series of talks for the British Broadcasting Co.

"I do not agree with Kennan," Truman said. "He is not a policymaker. He made a good ambassador when he had someone to tell him what to do."

"(Former Secretary of State) Acheson was his boss, just as he was (Secretary of State) Dulles' boss, and both did pretty well under him. Dulles needs a boss. He doesn't have one."

Acheson yesterday also criticized Kennan's proposal.

Ambassador Delivers Letter

Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson delivered to the Soviet Foreign Office late today President Eisenhower's 4,000-word reply to Soviet Premier Bulganin's proposal for an East-West summit conference.

There was no immediate reaction in the press or radio here. The usual Soviet practice is to withhold publication of such communications until the Kremlin releases.

Good Morning!

Truth has only to change hands a few times to become fiction.

counter-subversive chairman; Ellsworth C. Palmer, Easton, district commander; Clarence Arnold, commander of West End Memorial Post 927, and Earl Palmer, East Stroudsburg, department vice chairman for blood donors. Kemp Post To Host District Convention

ELLSWORTH C. Palmer of American Legion's 30th Pennsylvania District, yesterday was endorsed as a candidate for the state finance committee at a district meeting held at the home of George N. Kemp Post 346, East Stroudsburg.

The committee will be elected during the department convention in Philadelphia in July.

The invitation of the East Stroudsburg post to hold the district convention here June 28 was accepted. It will be attended by representatives of the district and state Legion officials.

It was voted to hold the spring meeting of the district at Summit Hill on April 16.

Reports were given by Elmer Heffer, department Civil Defense chairman, particularly citing rescue squads; Walter Palmer, Easton, department chairman of activities, who discussed Legion baseball and Theodore Hinger, Jim Thorpe, child welfare activities.

Representatives of the Palmer post reported that it has exceeded last year's membership total and now has 827 members.

Lunch was served by the host post to the delegates representing posts in Carbon, Northampton and Monroe Counties.

Martin Feels U. S. Still In Lead

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R-Mass.) said today that "America today is stronger than the Soviets in the missile field."

In a television interview filmed with Rep. Keating (R-NY) for Upstate New York stations, Martin said the reason the Russians were able to launch an earth satellite first was "because they stole the secrets from the United States that gave them that advantage."

No Elaboration

Martin did not elaborate on this. Charges have been made that the Rosenberg atom spy ring gave U. S. space secrets to Russia in 1947-48. Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were executed on espionage charges in 1953.

Martin touched on a broad range of subjects, including:

1. He is opposed to reorganizing the defense setup to the point where there would be one chief of all services, because then "we are getting along to where Hitler was."

2. He is "not too optimistic" about balancing the new budget.

3. He favors a small increase in the 275-billion-dollar debt limit as far preferable to an increase in taxes.

Daily Worker Closes

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—The Daily Worker died tonight at the age of 34, but promising with its last breath a resurrection. "We'll be back! Fighting for peace, democracy and socialism" shouted a banner headline as the last edition of the Communist party newspaper rolled off the presses tonight.

12 Persons Die In State

By The Associated Press
AT LEAST 12 persons were killed accidentally in Pennsylvania over the weekend; seven on the highways and five in other mishaps.

Explosion Of Gas

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 12 (AP)—A million and a half cubic feet of artificial gas "whooshed" from the top of a municipal storage tank today in a flash explosion that caused near panic in the northwest side of Indianapolis. Several families fled from their homes in the densely populated area but returned within an hour. Two persons, Cleophas Gilmer, 44, and Lucille Maline, 48, suffered minor injuries when they fell while trying to escape from the scene.

AFL-CIO Slow With Teamsters

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The battle between the AFL-CIO and its ex-affiliate, the Teamsters Union, is warming up a bit but it is still in the cream puff - slinging stage.

AFL-CIO groups in Chicago and in Maine, Tennessee and Massachusetts have acted to toss out Teamsters units at local levels as ordered by AFL-CIO President George Meany. But other state and local federations are taking their time in following suit.

One Month

Only a little more than a month has passed since the AFL-CIO expelled the 1½-million - member truck drivers union on charges that President-elect James R. Hoffa and other Teamsters leaders were corruptly influenced.

Since then there has existed a sort of armed truce. Hoffa and other Teamsters bosses have been too busy with a series of court cases to worry too much about retaliation.

AFL-CIO leaders have withheld fire too, waiting to see how Hoffa fares in the courts. They feel that without Hoffa the big Teamsters organization could be brought back into the AFL-CIO fold intact. On the other hand, they say starting a rival truck union would only entrench Hoffa and stir up labor troubles that would hurt employers as well as unions.

The Teamsters could force the issue any time by crossing AFL-CIO picket lines at the scene of labor disputes.

British Press Studies Letter

LONDON, Monday, Jan. 13 (AP)—President Eisenhower's reply to Moscow's summit meeting proposal was weighed and found wanting by much of the British press today.

"There was no answering challenge. No inspiration," complained the Conservative Daily Mail. "No new proposals to fire the imagination or regain the initiative for the West."

Senators Face Requests By Two Services

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Strong Army and Navy demands for hundreds of millions of extra dollars for advanced weapons faced senators today even before President Eisenhower's budget requests reached Congress.

The President's budget message will be presented to Congress tomorrow. It is expected to call for spending about 74 billion dollars in the fiscal year that begins next July 1. Of this amount, defense outlays are expected to approach 40 billions.

However, some top officers are demanding hundreds of millions of extra dollars for Army missiles and Navy nuclear submarines.

These calls came in closed-door testimony that has been released by the Senate Preparedness subcommittee. The witnesses were Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin, Army research director who is retiring, and Rear Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, Navy nuclear expert.

Gavin told senators he "missed Congress" last year by supporting a request for 372 million dollars for Army research and development. He said he really needed nearly 200 millions more.

Fiscal Year

And without mentioning exact dollar figures, he said the total carried in Eisenhower's budget for the next fiscal year "isn't going to be an awful lot better for research and development."

Rickover, credited with developing the world's first successful atomic submarine for the Navy, testified that 19 nuclear undersea craft now operating or authorized are not enough.

The Senate subcommittee has been investigating U. S. missile and satellite programs since Russia electrified the world with her successful launchings of two earth-orbiting moons.

Beginning tomorrow, military leaders will face yet another set of judges. The House Armed Services Committee will open an exhaustive investigation, but the military are expected to find a relatively friendly court.

The House inquiry aims to start with missile problems and go on into the emotion-packed questions of division of responsibility among the services and improved control over them.

Proposals for a single commander of all the services, or a general staff at the top, will get little encouragement in the committee. Traditionally it has ranged its powerful influence against the single service concept. And with the past week key committee members — including Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) and Rep. Arends (R-Ill) — have reaffirmed their opposition.

Farm Show Opens In Harrisburg

HARRISBURG, Jan. 12 (AP)—The men who stage the annual State Farm show which opens here tomorrow took notice that the number of farmers is shrinking each year while the number of consumers steadily increases.

And that is why the 1958 Show which will run through Friday will follow the theme: "better farming for better service to the consumers."

More than half a million persons from Pennsylvania, other states and even other nations are expected to visit the show in the spacious Farm Show building.

Newest Developments

"The Farm Show this year features the newest developments in machinery and methods designed for efficiency in farming and advancement in quality of consumer products," said William L. Henning, agriculture secretary.

The show will officially get underway tomorrow night when Gov. Leader delivers a brief address in the huge Farm Show arena.

Rocket Engines

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—The conquest of space depends now on big rocket engines using solid fuels, a missile expert said today.

The report was published just two days after the Army announced it had been ordered to design a new solid fuel rocket to replace its huge liquid-fueled Redstone, a 200-mile-range missile.

The Navy is developing a solid fuel missile, the Polaris, for

Artic Cold Wave Moves Through Eastern States

By The Associated Press

AN ARCTIC cold wave occupied the eastern states yesterday.

Saranac Lake in the New York Adirondacks was one of the nation's coldest spots with a low reading of -25.

The mercury skidded to -17 at Newport, Vt., and to -3 at Albany, N. Y.

Nighttime readings in the 30s prevailed over northern Florida while the teens were the rule in the mountains of North Carolina and Virginia.

A high pressure weather system centered over Lake Ontario kept skies clear and winds from the north. Thunderstorms broke out over parts of Texas and rain spread northward into Missouri and Nebraska.

A vigorous weather disturbance near the British Columbia coast sent a flow of Pacific moisture inland over much of the far West. A rainy pattern prevailed over much of Washington and Oregon and into parts of northern California.

Fair weather is expected to give way to moisture Monday throughout most of the East. Rain was forecast for the Carolinas, rain or snow in the Middle Atlantic States and snow extending into New England.

Gusty north winds swept across Texas, kicking up large dust clouds in some areas.

Visitor To Russia Reports Former British Diplomat Anxious To Return Home

LONDON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Guy Burgess, one of two high-ranking British diplomats who defected to Russia, today was reported anxious to come home.

Michael Ingrams, a television official who spent four months in the Soviet Union making films, says Burgess is asking British visitors whether he would be accepted here.

Donald Maclean, the other diplomat who crossed the Iron Curtain with Burgess, also came back into the news after months of obscurity. The mass circulation Sunday Pictorial reported he has split with his 41-year-old American wife, Melinda, and that she wants to get their three children out of Russia.

The report said Mrs. Maclean has appealed for help to British and U. S. authorities.

Ingrams brought no word of Maclean except that he lives in a Moscow suburb with his family and that the three children, who go to a state school, speak only Russian.

Mix Freely
The television official told newsmen Soviet authorities let him mix freely with the people and he met a small colony of "runaway Britons."

"I refused invitations to attend their parties and to meet Burgess," Ingrams said. "But they talked a lot about him. They told me he was most unhappy and looking very old."

"He is keen to meet British visitors because he wants to get back to England. He is continually asking people from this country if they think he would be accepted here."

Ingrams added that Burgess is drinking heavily and has only one close friend, a Russian miner. Burgess and Maclean disappeared from London in 1951. Russia never officially admitted they had crossed the Iron Curtain, but the two diplomats finally held a news conference in Moscow in 1956 to confirm reports that they had gone to work for the Soviet Foreign Ministry.

English Faces Possible Change

HARRISBURG, Jan. 12 (AP)—The State Department of Public Instruction hinted today that the teaching of English in Pennsylvania schools might be in for some basic revisions.

The department so indicated in the third of a series of reports designed to acquaint the public with problems to be discussed at the Governor's Conference on Education.

France Seeks Help

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—French economic expert Jean Monnet arrived here tonight to seek U. S. backing in the French fight against inflation.

Parallel Reports

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—Nelson Rockefeller said today there may be no need for publication of the much-discussed but still secret Galtier report since it appears to parallel one just put out by the Rockefeller Brothers Fund.

While Byrd is expected to go along, Sen. Malone (R-Nev) and Kerr (D-Okla.) will be fighting to bottle up the measure. It will take the administration's best efforts to get a bill to the Senate floor that is not riddled with amendments.

Weeks is reported to have told President Eisenhower at a recent White House conference the administration will have to "sweat blood" to get any trade bill through the House in recognizable form.

There are about to be perfected and produced powerful new weapons which, availing of outer space, will greatly increase the capacity of the human race to destroy itself.

"If indeed it be the view of the Soviet Union that we should not go on producing even newer types of weapons, can we not stop the production of such weapons which would use or, more accurately misuse, outer space, now for the first time opening up as a field for man's exploration?"

"Should not outer space be dedicated to the peaceful uses of mankind and denied to the purposes of war? That is my proposal."

Qualification Announced In Official Note

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower told Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin in a personal message today that "I am ready" to attend an East-West summit conference on condition that it is carefully prepared and shows "good hope" of promoting world peace.

At the same time Eisenhower proposed to the Soviet Premier a sweeping series of agreements at this "decisive moment in history" to renounce outer space warfare, abandon use of the veto in the United Nations over peaceful settlement of disputes, and call off nuclear weapons tests "indefinitely" under a program to stop making nuclear weapons.

But the President rejected by clear implication Bulganin's recent call for a summit conference by early April. And he brushed aside as unnecessary or inadequate half a dozen recent Bulganin proposals including an East-West nonaggression pact, an agreement not to use force in the Middle East, and creation of a zone free of nuclear weapons in West Germany and Central Europe.

The President set forth his views and proposals in a 4,000-word message which Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson delivered to the Soviet Foreign Office in Moscow late today.

Specific Reply
The letter replied specifically to a Bulganin letter of Dec. 10. It clearly covered also another long note the President received from Bulganin last week, although that may get a further specific reply later.

The leaders of Britain, France and other NATO nations, who also received December and January messages from Bulganin are expected to reply within a few days, taking the same line as Eisenhower.

The tone of the President's letter was cordial but tough in spots. In appealing for political freedom in Eastern Europe, he reminded Bulganin of the Hungarian revolt 14 months ago and he said bluntly that Soviet communism is responsible for the cold war. He also demanded that Russia live up to its Geneva summit conference agreement to reunify Germany through free elections.

To diplomats it appeared that, in spite of the obvious deadlock on how a summit conference should be arranged and the Eisenhower-Bulganin stalemate on great basic issues, the President's letter advanced the prospects for a summit meeting, possibly sometime later this year.

In discussing his appeal to eliminate the capacity for space war even before it is fully developed, Eisenhower recalled that 10 years ago the United States offered a plan to renounce making atomic weapons. If Russia had accepted it, he said, the world would not today be under the nuclear menace.

"The nations of the world face today," Eisenhower declared, "another choice perhaps even more momentous than that of 1948. That relates to the use of outer space. Let us this time, and in time, make the right choice, the peaceful choice."

"There are about to be perfected and produced powerful new weapons which, availing of outer space, will greatly increase the capacity of the human race to destroy itself."

"If indeed it be the view of the Soviet Union that we should not go on producing even newer types of weapons, can we not stop the production of such weapons which would use or, more accurately misuse, outer space, now for the first time opening up as a field for man's exploration?"

"Should not outer space be dedicated to the peaceful uses of mankind and denied to the purposes of war? That is my proposal."

Solid Fuels Key To Space Travel

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—The conquest of space depends now on big rocket engines using solid fuels, a missile expert said today.

The report was published just two days after the Army announced it had been ordered to design a new solid fuel rocket to replace its huge liquid-fueled Redstone, a 200-mile-range missile.

The Navy is developing a solid fuel missile, the Polaris, for launching from surface ships and submerged submarines. It is in the 1,500-mile class.

Rocket Society
Harold W. Ritchey, writing in Astronautics, a magazine of the American Rocket Society, said enlarging a current solid fuel engine like the Recruit could provide a first-stage vehicle to enter space.

The Recruit is a relatively small missile measuring nine inches in diameter and weighing about 350 pounds.

Ritchey is technical director for Thiokol Chemical Corp., Huntsville, Ala. Huntsville is home for Redstone Arsenal, where Army missile development is located.

Ritchey said old arguments against solid fuels are now largely outdated by progress in the field. One of these arguments was that solid fuel rockets were hazardous and unpredictable bombs full of explosive.

In addition, he said, solid fuel missiles can provide more thrust, while the liquid-fueled missile is inherently poor in this capability.

Furthermore, Ritchey said, as the search goes on for high energy fuels beyond the capability of either liquid or solid petroleum fuels, most of the promising materials are solid in nature.

THREE PEN ARGYL High School boys who are candidates for Keystone Farmer degree are shown here completing records for their 1957 projects. They are (left to right) Robert Mack, Clayton Reese and Robert Duran, all senior students. They and Arthur Hower, also of Pen Argyl, are among 200 Future Farmers of America boys will receive the degree at State Farm Show, Harrisburg, Wednesday.

Pen Argyl High Student To Receive Calf At Farm Show

HARRISBURG — Robert Mack, a senior at Penn Argyl Area Joint High School, will be awarded a pure-bred, registered Ayrshire heifer calf today at the State Farm Show.

The presentation will be made by the Pennsylvania Ayrshire Breeders Assn. for having the best Ayrshire dairy herd of any Future Farmers of America member in Pennsylvania.

Young Mack began his training in vocational agriculture with a junior project in the Fall of 1953. He had joined his local 4-H Dairy Club in 1950 with one pure-bred Ayrshire heifer calf and now has nine Ayrshires—all from this original animal except two purchased from his brother.

Because of his farm experience and good record, Robert was a recipient of a pure-bred Holstein chain calf during the sophomore year.

Fourth Year
For his fourth year farming program, he has the nine Ayrshires and one Holstein. He plans to raise all heifer calves which are born.

His other planned projects, as reported by FFA Area Supervisor Wilmer Frisbie, are: 300 straight run chicks, a vegetable garden of 3,000 square feet, three hives of bees, four acres of field corn, plus conservation and wildlife.

Last Fall, he fitted, trained and showed five animals at local fairs—Plainfield, Blue Valley and Wyckoff-Sears. His total earnings for dairy exhibits alone brought him $135.

Robert has been active in the Future Farmers of America activities, serving as an officer of both the Pen Argyl FFA and the Pocono Mountain Area Chapter. He represented his local chapter in parliamentary and public speaking contests, at FFA Week events at Penn State University and as a member of the rifle team.

Young Mack is also active in 4-H Club work, sings in his church choir and is serving as a Sunday School teacher.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain, Stops Itching as it Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching, and relieve pain — without surgery. In case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. Most amazing of all — results were so thorough that sufferers made astonishing statements like "Piles have ceased to be a problem!"

Area State Police Investigate 440 Auto Accidents In County

Work handled By Four Sub-Stations

AREA State Police from four substations investigated a total of 448 auto accidents during 1957, the annual report of Capt. Lawrence Sepudar, commanding Troop A, District Three, showed yesterday.

The breakdown showed 80 investigations by Fern Ridge troopers, 81 by Lehigh, 109 by Mount Pocono and 178 by Stroudsburg.

There were 813 accidents during the year in the three and one-half county area including Carbon, Columbia and Monroe counties and Lower Luzerne County.

Two Spots

The remainder were investigated by troop headquarters at Hazleton and the Bloomsburg sub-station.

In all, 44 persons were killed in the area during the year, 36 of them in rural crashes. Excessive speed and operating too fast for conditions was the apparent cause of 14 accident deaths, with carelessness blamed for an additional nine deaths.

There were 294 operators, 359 occupants and 17 pedestrians injured in rural accidents during the year with property damage estimated at $640,400.

A total of 5,349 arrests for violations of the Motor Vehicle Code were made by the troop during 1957. In addition, there were 693 criminal arrests.

Pike-Wayne Association To Meet

UNANIMOUSLY reelected last month, the board of officers of the Pike-Wayne Tavern Assn. headed by Joseph Oppelt, Newfoundland, will be formally installed at a meeting to be held on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 19, at the Eddy Hotel, Hawley.

The business agenda, according to Oppelt, will be highlighted by the discussion of plans for the resumption of a membership campaign, which, last year, is reported to have been responsible for tripling the association's membership. The drive will be headed by Frank Seifert, Newfoundland, chairman of the membership committee.

Activity Reports

Reports on association activities will be read by Joseph Brennan, chairman of the by-laws committee; Joseph Novotny, grievance committee; Catherine Newhard, welfare committee; and Charles Ellsworth, legislative committee.

A buffet luncheon will be served, followed by an exhibition of colored films depicting scenes at the recent convention of the National Licensed Beverage Assn. held at Las Vegas last month, at which the two-county group was represented by its president, Joseph Oppelt.

Plans will be presented for the holding of an open meeting to which all non-member licenses of Pike and Wayne counties will be invited.

U.S. Leads In Atomic Electric Power

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—The United States leads the world in the scope of its program to develop "safe, efficient and competitive" electric power from atomic fission, Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission said today.

He also said both the United States and Great Britain, in a cooperative effort, have made considerable progress toward taming the H-bomb reaction—atomic fusion—as another source of power.

News Conference

Strauss, at a news conference, offered no timetable on when industrial power from fission might become economical although he indicated that recent developments have been encouraging.

But he declared that attainment of practical peacetime power from hydrogen or thermonuclear energy is still "years and years" away.

Strauss reported the AEC already has built and operated 23 reactors of the fission type in this country for the production of power for civilian and military uses. They include reactors for producing electricity and for propulsion. And another 44 are under construction and still another 21 are under development or in the planning stage, he said, adding in a statement:

"This total of 88 power reactors represents a program which, to our knowledge, is not approached by any other country, either in performance or planning."

He thus implied that the United States is far ahead of Russia in this regard.

Amateur, Professional Winners Selected In 21st Annual Wyckoff Exhibit Of Art

PHOEBE Conrad, amateur and C. F. Dreisbach, professional, were chosen as top prizewinners in the 21st annual Wyckoff Art Show Saturday.

Miss Conrad won the top award in the amateur class for her pastel painting titled "November". It is number 118 in the show.

The winning painting in the professional class is a view of "Swiftwater Creek". It is number 27 in the exhibit. It was purchased before judging was completed.

Other top prizewinners were the following:

Amateur—Second place to Olivia Dreher for number 14, "Fruit"; third place to Joyce Raymond for number 111, "Gloucester, Mass."; first honorable mention to J. Carroll Tobias for number 37, "Fantasy Italia" and second honorable mention to Harry V. Pifer Jr. for number 37, "Reflections."

Professional—Second place to Sterling Strauser for number 19, "Boilers Works vs. Pump Company"; third place to J. Harvard Macpherson for number 124 "Up the Delaware".

ware"; first honorable mention to Angelo Vianello for number 122, "Self-Portrait" and second honorable mention to J. Peter Heiden for number 29, "Seascape."

Judges for the show were Allan Eldredge, a New Jersey artist now employed at the Picatinny Arsenal; Marcia Clapp, a sculptor who resides at Bushkill and Edwin F. Beemer, Culver's Lake, N. J., a well-known artist and teacher.

Eldredge is considered an expert on camouflage, was an official wartime painter and has served as design director for Sweden House in New York City. He was affiliated with Lord and Taylor department store for many years. He has shown paintings in national exhibits at Babcock Gallery in New York. He is active in Tri-State Artists Association in Branchville, N. J.

Miss Clapp has her own studio at Bushkill. She has been a professional artist for many years. A native of Indiana she won a scholarship to study art abroad as a young woman. In this country she has pioneered in the field of manufacturing mannequins for exclusive department stores.

Beemer maintains Beemer-studio at Culver's Lake. He has exhibited widely in many large shows throughout the nation. He studied at the National Academy in Washington under Emil Carlsen and at the Art Students League in New York under William M. Chase. He has studied the scenic arts and worked with the Crescent Theatre in Brooklyn, N. Y. For 37 years he was an art instructor in New York City high schools. He is a private teacher now, holding classes at his own studio.

There are 154 paintings in the present show. It continues through Jan. 18.

Audience response to this year's show has been far greater than in previous years. Beginning Wednesday, when store officials began to hang the exhibit—crowds of people have visited the show throughout store hours.

Miss Clapp will appear on WVPO at 9:45 a.m. today in a program direct from the art show.

Cowell To Fill Post On Council

PORTLAND — William H. Cowell, who was defeated for reelection last November after serving 40 years on Portland Borough Council, was appointed to an unexpired term as the council reorganized last week.

Cowell, a Democrat, was named to fill the term of Russell S. Reimer, a Republican, who resigned to become a member of the school board. Reimer was elected to the school board in November. The council term expires at the end of the year. Dr. Howard Ott was sworn in for another term as burgess by Justice of the Peace John R. Wildrick, Sr.

Ott administered the oath of office to William Brodt, a Democrat, who was elected in November, and to Wallace Stine and Ray Hamilton, Republicans, who were elected to the council. Cowell was renamed president of council.

Reappointed

Borough officials reappointed at the meeting include Roy A. Smith, treasurer; Russell T. Strunk, secretary; Jesse Felker, chief of police and health officer; Frank Gardner, secretary of the board of health, and John Bellis, assistant secretary.

The new council approved a tentative budget calling for total expenditures of $11,417.50 and estimated revenues of $5,818. The difference will be made up from a balance on hand. The property tax rate has not been set, but is expected to be lower because the reassessment of properties. The rate will be set when the budget ordinance is introduced at the February meeting.

The new budget is $3,350 higher than the 1957 budget. Although the cost of maintenance and operation of the borough is about $1,000 less than last year, the total figure is increased by $4,350 in capital outlay, of which $4,000 will go toward the cost of the new firehouse and $350 toward new road construction.

Ives Hopeful Of Laws To Correct Evils

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Sen. Ives (R-N.Y.) said today he is "desperately hopeful" Congress will enact laws this year to correct evils in the labor-management field.

But Ives, vice chairman of the Senate Rackets Investigating Committee, said he would oppose any plan to bring unions under antitrust laws.

The Rackets Committee plans a series of closed-door meetings starting this week to consider what bills it should recommend to Congress to deal with corruption, racketeering and other abuses it has investigated in nearly a year of public hearings.

Ives said it is too early to predict now "what fate would meet efforts to pass labor legislation" in the Congress session opening Tuesday.

His statements were made in an interview recorded for television stations in West Virginia and Iowa. A partial transcript of the program was made public by his office.

Curb Abuses

The Eisenhower administration also will push for new laws to curb abuses in labor-management relations. President Eisenhower will send Congress a special message on this subject the week of Jan. 13.

Sen. McClellan (D-Ark.), chairman of the Rackets Committee, told newsmen he hopes for enactment of some labor legislation, especially with respect to the administration of union affairs and finances.

He said legislation should assure "democratic processes that will give greater control to rank-and-file members and less dictatorial powers to union officials."

Resident Of Stroud In Opposition

EDWIN F. Buck of 83 Bridge St., a member of the Citizens Bypass Committee, charged that Stroud Township supervisors passed a resolution endorsing plan A for the Route 611 Thruway without considering economic damage in the township.

Buck, a resident of the township, said in a weekend statement the Highway Department's Plan A will cause serious damage in sections of the township.

Report

He also said the state's route will create a serious flood hazard in the Pocono Park area.

He said supervisors failed to consult township residents and the board's resolution is directly contrary to the wishes of many township residents who signed a petition asking for a better route than Plan A.

Methodist Women Vote Censorship

BUCK HILL FALLS—Delegates representing some 1,800, 000 Methodist women voted yesterday to seek "tighter censorship" of American movies sent overseas for foreign consumption.

They said such movies should express "better aspects of family life and higher standards of morality."

The Methodist Board of Missions Conference opens its annual session here at The Inn today. The Conference ends on Friday.

WEEKLY INSURANCE LETTER

Dear Friends:

I can't remember who originally said, "Money will buy a pretty good dog, but it won't buy the wag of his tail." Regardless who said it, 'tis true!

The same thing is exactly true of insurance. Money can buy a pretty good policy, but it won't buy those extra services you would like to have.

You know, the insurance business isn't a trade one can decide to enter and then immediately set himself up as being proficient. Instead, it is a complex, demanding profession requiring long years of study and experience with policies, companies, rating organizations and loss adjustment services.

That is exactly what you receive from us here at Crowe Insurance Agency.

Call us today; it may be the most important call you'll ever make.

Hail To Farm Show

State-wide attention is on Harrisburg this week as Pennsylvania puts on public display some of its outstanding agricultural products of the past year and honors many of the farmers who have made this one of the nation's greatest farm states.

As Gov. George M. Leader points out, Pennsylvania agriculture rises to its greatest heights at Farm Show time, marking the completion of a year of progress and the beginning of a new period for the further advancement of the industry.

It is most appropriate, the Governor said, that the 42nd Farm Show opening today "place emphasis on quality products and remind consumers that Pennsylvania farm and processed foods are among the best that can be obtained anywhere."

Non-Pennsylvanians are sometimes surprised to learn that this Commonwealth's farms number 128,000; that capital investment in farms is more than three billion dollars and that farm gross income in Pennsylvania is $742,000,000 a year.

These figures mean that agriculture is as important as steel or coal in Pennsylvania.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Continuing Progress

The federal Civil Rights Commission takes office at a time when there is a shift of emphasis in race relations. The drastic policy symbolized by armed intervention at Little Rock is being modified by the gradualism expressed in the Dallas decision of the Fifth Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Administration pressure is being relaxed, partly because national interest has been diverted to defense problems, partly because time is needed to consolidate reforms already ordained and partly because the Republicans found little political profit in their fight for civil rights.

Negro voters in the last election generally remained loyal to the Democratic party, despite its identification with discrimination and segregation in the South. Like individuals, political parties expect reward for extraordinary effort, and react predictably when appreciation is withheld.

The Pennsylvania Story

Special Investigator

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Two months ago — much to the consternation of top leaders — Administration — this column disclosed the existence of what might be termed a "little gestic" movement within the State Department of Highways.

By department directive rank and file field and headquarters employees were urged to squeal — in confidence and over the heads of their immediate superiors — direct to departmental headquarters here in Harrisburg.

A special investigation division was set up in the department — headed by a former Secret Service specialist. There is a sequel to this — to be found this time in the Department of Property and Supplies, the Commonwealth's multi-million dollar house-keeping and purchasing agency.

sylvania's economy.

Pennsylvania leads the nation in cigar-leaf tobacco, in quality eggs state-inspected for retail sale and in cash income from farm chickens—except broilers. We lead the nation in the value of apples state-graded for sale, as well as in the value of crops grown under glass.

Furthermore, Pennsylvania ranks first in the production of nursery-grown Christmas trees, second in buckwheat production, second in cash income from chickens and eggs combined and has always led the nation in the production of ice cream.

As a fruit-producing state, we are fourth in peaches, fourth in red cherries and sixth in the production of commercial apples. Pennsylvania ranks fifth in maple syrup produced and is fourth in the value of cash income from dairy products, fifth in total milk production and fifth in milk cows.

Yes, we're not only an industrial state, we're an agricultural state, too, one of the greatest. And while not primarily an agricultural section, Monroe County is proud of those among its residents who engage in farming, and will watch with interest the happenings at the State Farm Show this week.

Bribe Deductions Doomed

Washington, Jan. 13.—Bribes to foreigners are on the way out as a "business expense" tax deduction.

Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson and the powerful Senate Finance Committee, headed by Senator Harry Byrd (D., Va.), are joining forces to put an end to this unusual tax loophole.

A bill for that purpose is being drafted by Senator John Williams, Del., ranking Republican member of the committee and long a vigorous tax-reform crusader.

Under the bipartisan plan that's been agreed on, Williams' proposal is to be speedily approved by the Finance Committee so it can be attached as an amendment to the first revenue measure the Senate receives from the House, where such legislation must originate under the Constitution.

On the basis of a careful poll, Senator Williams is confidently claiming a decisive majority for his bill to bar bribes to foreigners as tax deductions.

They are costing the Treasury "many millions of dollars a year in revenue."

That is what Secretary Anderson has told the Committee in a letter strongly urging legislation to plug this loophole.

He warned such deductions are steadily increasing as a result of expanding operations by U.S. contractors and other businessmen in foreign countries.

At Senator Byrd's direction, the Finance Committee's staff has made a study of tax returns claiming such extraordinary "business expenses."

One instance involved a $1,800,000 bribe to Dominican Republic officials.

The Internal Revenue Service allowed this big graft payment by a New Jersey contractor as a tax deduction — after consulting the State Department and being "advised" to approve it.

Revenue Commissioner Russell Harrington related, under questioning by Senator Byrd, that the State Department's recommendation was based on two factors: The only way the New Jersey firm could obtain this $10,000,000 water and sewer contract was to pay the reason: he was on the payroll of investigation-minded Department of Justice and as noted previously — could not legally draw two paychecks.

With these gestic-like tactics, the question might well be asked—As it is among many uneasy Capitol Hill big-wigs—as to whether the administration trusts its own people.

What is the background of this payroll-to-payroll employee? That is interesting too.

Ten years ago he entered Naval criminal investigation work, took time out in 1949 to attend the Navy's criminal investigation school, carried out undercover work for the Navy in the early 1950's, attended Navy security school in 1955, and in January of 1956 was hired by the Interstate Commerce Commission as an investigation officer.

He now holds a private investigator's license in Pennsylvania.

On the basis of the record, he undoubtedly has the qualifications for a "special investigator" for either the Department of Justice or Department of Property and Supplies.

It is purely coincidental — of course—that five days after his formal and in-the-open appointment as a "special investigator" with the Department of Property and Supplies, the $8554-a-year director of the department's Automotive Bureau should resign!

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Problem Of Education

A social science teacher writes me that teachers are not allowed to teach. This brings us down to bed-rock in a very serious problem, namely, that our children probably get more schooling and know less than children who attend European schools. The evidence is available on this subject, because when children from abroad come to our schools, they are regarded as bright children, whereas when we send our children abroad, they need to catch up. And it is not all due to the language difficulty.

This teacher, who is now holding a job, writes me: "The administrators expect the teachers to 'teach the whole child'—but, teach him nothing. Anything that requires work on the part of the student is frowned upon. Everything must be easy and Johnny must always be happy and never know failure. As a result of this philosophy Johnny reaches high school without knowing how to read or write or do simple arithmetic problems. The remarkable thing is that some few do learn these things fairly well. The majority of the students are far from being ready for high school . . ."

Many teachers are writing me these days about their experiences from many parts of the country, and from the letters, I reach the conclusion that the fault is neither with the teachers nor the pupils but with a system of education that does not recognize that some learn quickly, some slowly; that some may be pushed ahead; that others must be retarded.

The system that an entire class must be moved up to make room for the next entire class is not only harmful to the child; it is a rejection of the obvious fact that no two human beings are alike in any respect and that a system that is based on averages must be unjust to both the most brilliant and the most stupid students. An average never invented or produced anything.

As this teacher from Ohio writes me: ". . . I repeat again—these young people are not stupid; they simply have never been taught to use their ability to learn but they have been taught to expect something for nothing, and they know absolutely nothing about taking responsibility."

So the teacher gets into trouble. Why are so many of his pupils marked F? Why are there not more Cs? The truth, of course, is that there ought to be even more Fs. The teachers are afraid to

"All For Love" — Congress has a BILLIONAIRE! That is the serious claim of Representative Frank Boykin (D., Ala.). And he backs it up by the further claim that he is the top income tax payer in Congress.

The genial, poly-poly legislator, whose favorite expression is "all for love," announced these breathtaking attainments at lunch with a group of colleagues. He proudly told them:

"I've just finished my 1957 tax return, and Uncle Sam is going to tag me for $660,000. I'm pretty sure that is just about tops for Congress; certainly the House."

"Gosh," exclaimed an astonished colleague, "how many millions are you worth?"

"Quite a lot," beamed Boykin. "My engineers tell me that figuring everything both under the ground and on top of it, my total worth will run around $25 billion."

"$25 billion," exploded several colleagues, "are you serious?"

"I certainly am," asserted Boykin. "I wouldn't say a thing like that unless I meant it. Why, just this morning I gave my barber here in the Capitol 50 percent interest in an oil well we are digging and which I'm sure will be a gusher. We struck oil in that area in our four last drillings, and every one of the wells is a fine producer."

Continuing to dazzle his astounded colleagues, Boykin told them he now employs around 3,500 persons, and his holdings extend 160 miles in every direction.

"I collect rent from four railroads that run through my land," he said. "I have a lodge that can house 400, and my engineers tell me we have the greatest salt deposits in the world. I also have one of the finest game reserves in the world. A couple of weeks ago, we bagged 35 deer in less than an hour. Now where can you match that?"

None of the colleagues could — nor any other of "All for Love" Boykin's fabulous claims.

The Once Over

Through college by TV may be near. In New York an educational telecast at dawn, "Sunrise Semester," has tens of thousands tuning in when most folks are asleep. It is a literature course. (Some allowance must be made for those who thought "Huckleberry Finn" was a western and "Vanity Fair" another jargonist show. Then there were folks who couldn't sleep after 3 a.m. and thought literature might do what a pill would not. But the students were mostly adults searching for wisdom, and who liked it properly lighted and with voice controls.)

"My friends all that is needed is fact-finding, coupled with horse sense and a little sacrifice. We dust dump the old idea that we are the smartest people on earth 'by appointment,' and that we hold the patent on brains, ingenuity and fresh ideas. I give you this program:

"1 — Realize that Uncle Sam needs every man's co-operation and that we don't do enough when we give him three cheers and a 'Do It Yourself' booklet.

"2 — Drop the belief you are reflecting top Americanism when you listen to a rendition of the national anthem at a baseball telecast.

"3 — Give a thought to your ancestors, none of whom put four-hour weeks, wish-wash, Santa Claus and free-wheeling first on the agenda.

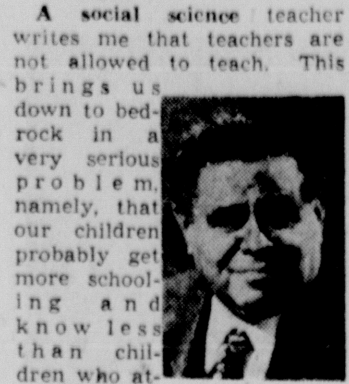

"4 — Get rid of the idea your kids are well-educated because they got a diploma in courses not covering spelling, simple arithmetic and grammar.

"5 — Out with the feeling anything can be solved by naming another commission. 'Don't sell short freedom, American resourcefulness and the power of Uncle Sam. We have pulled some rocks and are in trouble. But paste this thought in our hat: America is the nation of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Sergeant York, not merely the land of Manville, Beck, Faubus and Liberace. It is primarily the country of Concord, Valley Forge and Yorktown, not Las Vegas, Beverly Hills and assorted gold coasts.

Problem Of Education

Why should smart young men or women go into teaching when they are not permitted to teach and if they spend enough years in the system, what else is there to do? The Ohio teacher asks:

"Now, what is the high school teacher to do? If he tries to get some work out of the student or has many failures he is called to the superintendent's office. Then if they continue he is called to the superintendent's office. Yes, this has happened several times in our system and in several others I know well.

"The teachers do not dare disagree with the philosophy of the administrators. . . . On the other hand, it is our children who are involved in this system which is based upon certain fundamental errors, namely:

1. That all children must remain in school up to an age specified by law, 16 or 18, whether they learn anything or not;

2. That all children must be promoted whether they deserve it or not;

3. That marking is done on a curve instead of on individual merit, so that the norm of the class is determined by an average student;

4. That a teacher's value is to be measured by the ability to work within administrative margins (team work) and not by knowledge and expertise in the subject taught;

5. That democratic principles require that the teacher should not discipline the students lest the student regard himself as socially unwanted or unfit.

If a teacher speaks of morals and ethics and happens to quote from the Bible or a great religious leader, there is always danger that the child will repeat what the teacher said and immediately there will be an outcry regarding separation of church and state. How can leadership be trained in a civilization based on the Judeo-Christian civilization without reference to the Bible?

The reply ought to be obvious, but is it?

If a teacher speaks of morals and ethics and happens to quote from the Bible or a great religious leader, there is always danger that the child will repeat what the teacher said and immediately there will be an outcry regarding separation of church and state. Why should smart young men or women go into teaching when they are not permitted to teach and if they spend enough years in the system, what else is there to do? The Ohio teacher asks:

"Now, what is the high school teacher to do? If he tries to get some work out of the student or has many failures he is called to the superintendent's office. 2. That all children must be promoted whether they deserve it or not;

3. That marking is done on a curve instead of on individual merit, so that the norm of the class is determined by an average student;

4. That a teacher's value is to be measured by the ability to work within administrative margins (team work) and not by knowledge and expertise in the subject taught;

5. That democratic principles require that the teacher should not discipline the students lest the student regard himself as socially unwanted or unfit.

John F. Edinger Honored On 98th Birthday Saturday

"Working and Walking," were two activities John F. Edinger recommended for keeping a man healthy, and he should know.

John Edinger celebrated his 98th birthday on Saturday, January 11, with open house at his home 126 Center St., East Stroudsburg, when flowers, cards and callers throughout the day made it a memorable one for him. He is in excellent health, still enjoys walks around the area on pleasant days and watching television. He keeps abreast of the times by reading The Daily Record.

His family includes Miss Daisy, at home; Mrs. Paul Heller and Mrs. Charles Albert, Stroudsburg; Mrs. Bertha Linberry, East Stroudsburg; and a son, Albert, of Middleton.

He was born in 1860 in Poplar Valley, son of John K. and Hannah Edinger, and was one of ten children. All ten children were alive to help their parents celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary. Four of his brothers reached the age of 90: David was 90; Lewis, 91; Elmer, 92; and Edward was 90.

John F. Edinger at 98 seems capable of going on indefinitely. Although he has given up the long walks over town and sleighing with the children down Center St. which he enjoyed up to a few years ago, and regrets that because of his hearing he can no longer attend the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, there isn't much else that he misses.

He is still planning to make a garden this Spring. He grew up on a farm and at one time they had 264 acres in cultivation. He has records showing pork selling at seven cents a pound and beef at six cents a pound.

When they moved to East Stroudsburg in 1904, he recalls they paid eight dollars a month rent.

Of course at that time the pay rate at International Boiler Works was 13 and a half cents an hour. It was a nine-hour day, too, he recalled. Work, however, was something he was used to and found satisfaction in. In fact he worked until he was past 81.

Work, walking and a good constitution are three ingredients of longevity he mentioned. A fourth he could have mentioned but didn't: appreciation of the efforts of others. Since he wife died 28 years ago, his daughter has taken good care of him.

His appetite is good. He enjoys television—most of it, that is, though at some shows he is tempted to put his foot right through the screen, he confessed with a smile. If he thinks of the past, he recalls it and then forgets it.

"It's the present we've got to live in," he said, and at 98 he finds that present pretty satisfactory.

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

As the meetings for the calendar mount up, it seemed impossible that there would be room for one more—providing there was an organization we didn't have, thought I to myself. And as usual, I thought wrong.

There was one we didn't have, so we're in the process of getting it. TOPS, it's called, and means Take Off Pounds Sensibly. Believe it or not, it is a national organization with the motto "Together We Lose."

Well, judging from the conversation since the holidays, there are a lot of potential members around. The buzz around the tea tables sounds very much as if it could be transferred right to the executive board meeting:

"Taken on four pounds since Christmas—", "stick to it: no seconds and no desserts!"; "—can't take a single more notch out of this belt!"; and, of course, the closing cliché, "Well, I really shouldn't but it looks so good—".

Personally, being what is known among farmers as a "hard-keeper", there's little sympathy or advice I can offer the new organization, except to remind them that skinny people have their problems, too.

For one thing, they are practically shut out of any table talk. With diets to the left of her, diets to the right of her, a skinny woman is practically ignored except for an occasional pronouncing. "Of course you don't have these problems."

We do, too, have problems. For instance only the most outspoken will go up to a friend and say, "My, you certainly haven't lost any weight since I saw you last," but nobody thinks anything of telling me "Well, you haven't gained any!"

You hear all the plump women complaining about how the new "sack" look makes them look like a bulgy sack of potatoes, but they never think that even potatoes might be preferable to nothing at all. An empty sack hangs pretty limp.

Since the underweight can't join TOPS maybe we should organize a counter-club: BOT-TOMS—standing for Bravely Offering to Test Oleaginous Meals Served—free, of course, by TOPS and consisting of all the delicious things they don't eat. Out motto? "What Have We to Lose?"

Sewing Tonight For Hospital At Ann Logan

The Anna Logan Society of the General Hospital will sew at their meeting tonight at 8:15 at the YMCA. Members are asked to bring thimble, needles and thread. They will be working on bed socks for the children's ward.

A social hour will follow the work session with Mrs. Thomas as chairman of the hostess committee.

Year's End For St. Mary's Guild

At the meeting of St. Mary's Guild, Christ Episcopal Church, Miss Lucile Girard read a letter from The Rt. Rev. Frederick J. Warneke, Bishop of Bethlehem, commending the women of Christ Church for their efforts during the past year. Miss Girard thanked the members for their cooperation during her term of office, and Mrs. Roy Houser asked for a vote of thanks from the women for Miss Girard, for her guidance.

Mrs. William E. Andrew, the new president, presided over the business session and the reports of the secretary and treasurer were read by Mrs. Jesse Pierson. In the absence of Mrs. Cross, the Secretary, Mrs. Florence Calkins conducted the devotions. Mrs. A. S. Phelps, Auxiliary President, reported on the projects of the Jonestown Home and a pledge was made.

The Rev. Charles A. Park, rector, discussed the new hangings for the altar, which the women of the church will make and have ready for the Lenten Season.

The Cancer Dressings Group will meet in the Parish House on Jan. 16 from 11 to 3.

The hostesses for the meeting were: Mrs. Franklin Smith, Mrs. Edward Eisenberger and Mrs. Frank Reusswig. Mrs. Florence Calkins presided at the tea table and poured.

Overweight Organize Local TOPS Branch

A group of overweight women have started a local branch of the national TOPS organization. TOPS stands for Take Off Pounds Sensibly and is a non-profit organization dedicated to helping the overweight who are interested in losing pounds.

It is based on the principle of "group therapy," where women in a group are able to accomplish what they haven't been able to do alone.

TOPS is approved by the American Medical Assn. and endorses no "fad diets" or dieting aids. Its members are urged to get their diets from their own physicians.

It is a continuing program, not limited to a few weeks or months. Anyone interested in further information may write to TOPS, Box 21 Slatford.

The Wyckoff Shopper
"As friendly store"
A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

Hurrying through the store enroute to the grocer's, I encountered a gentleman I had never met before—possibly because his visits, while most welcome, are infrequent. His name is Anson Thiers... he resides in Pottstown, and is Eastern representative of Russell Stover Candies, covering ten states from Delaware to Maine.

It was only natural we should begin chatting about the history of this company which prides itself upon being "national in a small way." Why, you might ask if you are commercial-minded, would any company wish to be anything in a SMALL way? The very sensible answer is that Russell Stover Candies are still essentially HANDMADE candies. The centers are hand rolled... made today, and dipped today with no "drying out" period permitted as in the case of truly commercial production. As a matter of fact, thirty minutes after dipping, Russell Stover candies are at the height of perfection, and it is the company's policy to get them just as quickly as possible into the mouths of the consumer.

For this reason, Russell Stover outlets are strictly limited, there being, for the most part, only one per city. In Stroudsburg, the chosen agency was A. B. Wyckoff. In Philadelphia, despite the city's size, the only outlet is John Wanamaker. There are approximately 3000 outlets in the entire nation.

Russell Stover and his wife founded their business about 35 years ago in Denver, Colorado, at a time when even the best candy was, very frequently, not so good. Most candy makers kept their formulae in their heads—and the results were far from uniform. Quality could not be stabilized. Mr. Stover recognized this, and set about finding a foolproof method of being consistent.

From Denver he moved to Kansas City, where he opened a combination candy store and ice cream parlor. Combining chocolate coating and an ice cream bar, he originated the Eskimo Pie, which is still very dear to my personal memory. Very soon, several drug stores approached Mr. Stover for the right to sell his candy. This was the beginning of the company's sound and steady growth. Mr. Stover was happy to expand his business... but only if his candy's quality could be maintained and it could be sold FRESH. Today there are 68 Russell Stover stores, and Russell Stover plants in Denver, Kansas City, and Lincoln, Nebraska. Our Wyckoff candies come from Lincoln. In order that they are consistently fresh, we must abide by the company's policy of SMALL WEEKLY ORDERS. When a company orders too heavily, there is danger of overstocking, and stale candy. This Russell Stover will not tolerate.

Mr. Stover passed away several years ago, but Mrs. Stover, still physically active, maintains a great interest in the company, which is operated by persons who "grew up" under the founder's policies and objectives. Just as it is a privilege to sell Russell Stover candy, I feel it was a privilege to meet Mr. Thiers and discuss with him another great American "Success Story."

THE POCONO Mountains Bowling Tournament won't be the Pocono Mountains Bowling Tournament this year. But it promises to be bigger and better under a new title—Pennsylvania Big Four Bowling Classic.

This week, officers of the PMBT Association, announced that the area phase of the spring classic will join with two top tournaments from the Lehigh Valley, Pa., vicinity in promoting the kegling event.

The tournament will be run practically the same way as last year—a handicap type—and will have the best bowlers in the nation vying for expected huge cash prizes.

This week, officers of the PMBT Association, announced that the area phase of the spring classic will join with two top tournaments from the Lehigh Valley, Pa., vicinity in promoting the kegling event.

Starting the first week in February, the Big Four plans to get in full swing and have all the pieces together when classic time rolls around the latter part of May and first of June.

It has not been officially declared, but East Stroudsburg's 1957 football team will be named co-champions of the Lehigh-Northampton League.

The Cavaliers will share the crown with Nazareth and Wilson.

According to the source, L-N treasury will cough up eight dollars to each of the three schools, allowing them a start toward the purchase of a trophy.

East Stroudsburg will buy a trophy and send an eight-dollar bill to the L-N.

Usually the league donates $25 to the winner for an award, but with the three-way deadlock, it probably will cut the cash to $8 and some odd cents apiece.

Hordes of colleges are flocking to the doorsteps of the home of Connie Shimer, Nazareth High's excellent quarterback of the past two seasons.

Shimer, however, is leaning toward the Ivy League and a chance to matriculate at Yale University.

The running and passing Blue Eagle specialist shouldn't have too much trouble picking any school—he's a straight "A" student and stands seventh in his class academically!!!

Nazareth may also have a boy playing on the Army eleven in a few years. He is Barry Mengel, 6-1, 225-pounder who was a defensive and offensive star for Ed Christman's Blue Eagles last fall.

Mengel, one of a long line of brothers who starred on the gridiron, basketball court and baseball diamond for Nazareth the past decade, wants to enroll at West Point.

There, they say, a good chance, he'll make it.

One reason Pocono Twp. High is atop the Monroe Scholastic League is that their foul-shooting average is over the 65 per cent mark by far the best record in the league.

If its any consolation for likeable Bill Frear coach of Chestnut Hill's MSL entry his five is the best fouling quintet in the loop.

The Hillers in third place in the loop have gone over the 100 personal foul mark in five games.

Of course there is one good reason for this Frear uses a man-to-man defense a majority or all of every game.

Warriorettes Win Opener

PAOLI — East Stroudsburg State Teachers girls varsity basketball team, switching forwards to guards and visa versa, had too many guns for Cheyney STC's lassies and ripped the Philadelphia suburbanites, 77-26, in the Warriorettes season inaugural here yesterday.

Miss Ann Van Veenia, attempting to keep the score more respectable, used her defensive girls — at forwards for three quarters of the game. However the "protective side" of the ESSTC team was just as adaptable in scoring and the Cheyney five sextette felt the brunt of the "Hill" attack throughout.

ESSTC, with its regular offensive combination holding forth, grabbed a 18-6 edge in the opening quarter and from here on despite Miss Van Veenia's moves, kept mounting the score the remaining three periods.

Boyd High Lorraine (Hank) Boyd spearheaded the balanced Warriorettes' attack with 16 points. She got extra help from Carol Sue Underwood, with 12, and Ruby Steel, with 11. Six other STC girls also broke into the scoring column.

Cheyney had one consolation as Mat Mary Jones picked up individual game scoring a laurels with a 20-point output.

German, Stauffer Spearhead Luce's Proteges To 3rd Win

PAOLI — Thanks to a fine first half performance by Charley German and a scintillating second half effort by Charley German, East Stroudsburg Teachers' boys varsity was boasting its third victory of the season and its first win in the Pennsylvania Teachers Basketball Conference today.

Dick Luce's Warriors, held in by a 15-point first half deed by Stauffer, and a 30-point second half duty by German, defeated Cheyney STC 83-73, here Saturday.

German, the Warriors bread and butter shotsman and leading scorer, checked in for the night with 33 points to take STC points scoring honors. Stauffer, the pushshot artist, was next in line for the "Hill" five with 18.

The Warrior duo received clutch assistance from John Krysa, Karl Weigner and Dewey Troutman. Krysa and Troutman added 11 each and Weigner posted 10 to spread all the points tallied by the ESSTC team among five players.

Cheyney's Dick Allen, a versatile marksman, took game honors with a 37-point spree.

Straight Buckets

East Stroudsburg had a tough time getting its offense working on all cylinders in the first half. Except for a five-straight jump shot sortie by Stauffer, the Warriors offense had to be satisfied with periodic five-point bulges the first 20 minutes.

However, in the second half German got on the beam and quarterbacked the "Hill" team into bigger spreads and to what turned out to be a comparatively easy win.

Luce, still experimenting with his attack, used the post and weave on and off as Cheyney attempted to disrupt the drives with pressing tactics.

Defensively the Warriors stayed in their conventional zone, changing at times to a switch maneuver to pick up the loose man.

Stopped Presses

The offensive and defensive changes by Luce threw off the host team in the smallish gymnasium, more than enough to insure ESSTC its third win in five games. Cheyney is 1-4 in the year.

In the preliminary ESSTC's junior varsity romped over Cheyney's underlings, 93-48. Jim Richardson's 24 led the Little Warriors.

Martinez, Turner TV Bout Headlines Week's Boxing

By JACK HAND

The welterweight tournament to name a successor to Carmen Basilio continues Wednesday at Philadelphia with Vince Martinez of Paterson, N.J., meeting Gil Turner of Philadelphia in a 12-round elimination bout.

Isaac Logart whipped Gaspar Ortega in 12 rounds at Cleveland Dec. 6 in the first match of the series involving six boxers named by the National Boxing Assn. and the world championship committee.

Over the week end, the NBA decided that the Martinez-Turner winner would be matched with Logart for NBA recognition as welter champ. Of the other two in the original elimination plans, no match has been made for George Barnes of Australia, and Virgil Atkins of St. Louis has a commitment for a rematch with Tony DeMarco in Boston Jan. 21.

Kayode DeMarco

Akins knocked out DeMarco in Boston Oct. 29 in a match billed by Massachusetts as for the world title. The bouts provoked so many problems that Massachusetts withdrew from the NBA.

According to the latest rankings, Turner is No. 2 with the NBA and Martinez is No. 4.

Turner, 27-year-old Philadelphia, has a 35-15-1 record for his campaigning in the welterweight and middleweight ranks. Martinez, 28, is 38-5, all in the welter division.

Martinez probably will be slight favorite.

Johnson Returns

Harold Johnson, another Philadelphia boy with title ambitions in the light heavyweight class where he is No. 1, faces Bert Whitehurst at Syracuse on Friday. Johnson will be a topheavy favorite of 1957 victories over Bob Satterfield, Clarence Hinnant, Wayne Bethea and Sid Peaks. Whitehurst won over Garvin Sawyer and Satterfield last year but bowed to Bethot.

Lightweights take over the Monday night show at St. Nicholas Arena in New York where Kid Centella of Nicaragua will box Frankie Ryff of New York. Centella lost his last to Joe Brown in a non-title bout and Ryff, making a comeback, at the age of 25 out-pointed Frank Ippolito Dec. 9.

Miller Cops Race On Ice Grand Prix

POCONO PINES — "Skip" Miller captured the opening grand prix of the "Sports Cars Race On Ice" here yesterday at Naomi Lake.

Approximately 5,000 people watched Miller, a resident of Pocono Pines, steer his Volvo into first place ahead of Joe Gibbons of Wilkes-Barre, Gibbons, in an Austin-Healey, took second place, while Sam Price, of Hazleton, also in an Austin-Healey, was third. Dick Steltz, of Allentown, in an Austin-Healey, came in fourth.

In the first race in cars under 1600 cc. Gibbons came in first. Dave Steltz, in a Porsche, placed second, and Tage Helligren, Stroudsburg, wound up in third in a Saab.

Over 1600 cc

The second event, over 1600 cc. saw Barrington Drew, of State College, gain the winners circle in an Austin-Healey. Sam Price, trailed in an Austin-Healey, and Art Braeung, of Maplewood, N. J., was third.

The races will resume next Sunday at Naomi when a four-hour endurance event will highlight the program.

Yesterday 63 cars of all makes made their way around the lake, sliding on the curves, and speeding on the straightaways to the delight of the huge turnout.

Ameche Lifts West To Win

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12 (AP) — Fullback Alan (The Horse) Ameche cracked loose with a 66-yard run in the last moments of the first half to set the score for a key score and the West rolled on to a 26-7 victory in the Pro Bowl football battle today.

The smashing run by the big Baltimore Colt star led to a field goal by his teammate, Bert Rechichar, that sent the West into a lead it never relinquished.

A record crowd of 66,534 sat under sunny skies to see this eighth game in a series that starts the pick of the Western Conference against the best of the Eastern of the National Football League.

The game was televised for the first time nationally but blacked out in this area. The previous high attendance was 53,676 in 1951.

Beautiful Pass

Ameche's great gallop came moments after quarterback Earl Morrall of Pittsburgh had arched a beautiful 33-yard pass into the end zone to Cleveland's Ray Renfro for a touchdown that put the East in front, 7-6.

East 6 7 0 0-7

Colleges, Universities In Middle Of Finance Squeeze

NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—American colleges and universities are in a worse financial squeeze than they have ever been before, the president of the Ford Foundation said today.

"Higher education is beset today by financial difficulties greater than those of any other period in American history," said Henry T. Heald.

Probers Still Far Apart

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Senate racketers probers made clear today they still are far apart on what laws are needed to cure evils they have exploited in the labor-management field.

Sen. Ives (R-N.Y.), vice chairman of the special committee conducting the inquiry, introduced four bills of his own. Fellow members were drafting other measures. President Eisenhower plans to send Congress a special message outlining bills he wants in the labor-management field.

Investigation Of Missiles Not All Bad

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12 (AP)—Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) said today the Senate investigation of the nation's missile-space flight program is showing "many strengths"—presumably still secret weapons—as well as weaknesses.

Johnson, chairman of the Senate Preparedness subcommittee conducting the inquiry, told reporters: "In emphasizing our shortcomings and deficiencies, it is well to bear in mind that we have done some things our folks don't know about. We have many strengths that should and will be emphasized, too."

He declined to elaborate. His statement came after his subcommittee had devoted most of the day to hearing testimony from the top Air Force missile officer who said, among other things, that wars may be fought in outer space within "a foreseeable time."

He said the testimony of three military experts who have appeared before his subcommittee at closed-door sessions indicated production rates for these space weapons should and could be stepped up.

Reference
Johnson referred to Lt. Gen. James A. Gavin, retiring chief of Army research and development; Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Bernard A. Schriever, director of the ballistic missiles program for the Air Force.

Schriever was quoted by Johnson as saying that both the Thor and Atlas missiles are being supported at an adequate rate in the development stage "but that production schedules could and should be accelerated."

The senator said Schriever added that the Thor and the Atlas development programs could not be accelerated but indicated that the Titan program could and should be stepped up.

The Thor is an intermediate-range ballistic missile, designed to hit targets 1,500 miles away. Both the Atlas and the Titan are intercontinental ballistic missiles with ranges of about 5,000 miles.

Other senators on the subcommittee reported they got an optimistic report on missile development from Schriever. Sen. Sargent (R-Mass.) called Schriever's testimony encouraging.

"The question is one of speed in actual production," Saltonstall added.

In his State of the Union message to Congress, President Eisenhower agreed that more must be done in the missile field.

He reported the United States spent more than a billion dollars on its missile programs last year and added "if we make the necessary effort, we will have the missiles, in the needed quantity and in time."

Bell Telephone Expects 1958 To Be Another Year Of Progress In State

W. D. GILLEN, president of the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania, said recently he expects 1958 to be another year of steady progress "in our continuing program for providing the best possible communications services" for the state.

Gillen, in a year-end statement, said demand for service continued at high levels in 1957 with 194,000 new telephones — representing a growth of 5.3 per cent — added during the year. He reported there are now 3,822,000 telephones in service in the state.

The company president said 171,000 more telephones are expected to be added by the end of 1958. He said "held orders" and "waiting lists" created by an unprecedented demand since World War II, have been virtually eliminated.

His statement continued: "The importance of telephone service in modern living is indicated by the fact that it was only five years ago that the number of Bell telephones in Pennsylvania reached three million. It required forty-seven years from the foundation of the company to the time when there were one million telephones in service. It took twenty more years to add the second million and six years to reach the third."

Present indications are that our customers will originate more than 16,600,000 calls a day during 1958, an increase of 886,000 calls a day, or 5.3 per cent over the daily average of 1957. Approximately 800,000 of these calls will be long distance calls, many of them dialed direct by customers.

"The continued demand for our services required that we spend $120,500,000 during 1957 in the largest construction program in any one year in our corporate history. Present indications are that it will require total outlay of $115,000,000 during 1958 to take care of expected growth and provide service improvements."

"This means that Bell Telephone Company will spend an estimated $454,000 for each business day of 1958. This is the cost of erecting new buildings, enlarging existing buildings, in-

Leader Feels Wider Needs For State

HARRISBURG, Jan. 12 (AP)—Gov. Leader says President Eisenhower's latest proposal to improve U.S. education is "a fine beginning" but won't solve the Commonwealth's education woes.

"Any action to meet the nation's pressing shortage of scientists and engineers is to be commended and the President's plan to grant federal scholarships and fellowships to deserving students is a significant step in the right direction," Leader said in a week-end statement.

The fact remains that the President's plan... simply cannot solve Pennsylvania's own problems of higher education," the governor warned.

Additional fields
"We do not need scientists and engineers alone in Pennsylvania," he declared. "We need well educated youth in all fields of enterprise, such as medicine, teaching, government, industry, agriculture and business," he explained.

He said the President's plan demonstrates that the federal government is "at last realizing its responsibility for extending higher education to the most valuable men and women who would otherwise be unable to go to college."

Leader said he backed a bill introduced last year by Rep. Elmer J. Holland (D-Pa.) which called for a similar program under which 30 scientific scholarships would be granted by the federal government each year for each congressional district.

"This legislation, which I favored, is still before Congress," he said.

The governor said Public Instruction Department officials have estimated that of the 100,000 who will be graduated from Pennsylvania high schools next June, less than 20,000 will enter college.

Consultant Wins Legal Battle
NEW YORK, Jan. 12 (AP)—An 80-year-old engineering consultant today won a 10-year fight to keep a $2,528.71 income tax refund which the Internal Revenue Service sent him in 1945 by mistake.

A ruling by 81-year-old U.S. Dist. Judge Robert A. Inch said that the statute of limitations barred the government from recovering the money from Louis W. Williams of Brooklyn.

Old Ideas Often Figure In Problems

By J. M. ROBERTS
EVERY now and then some prominent figure in the cold war revives the idea that substitution of old-fashioned diplomatic channels for radio channels would contribute to a solution of world problems.

George Kennan did so recently. He has been joined by President Huuss of West Germany. And Nikita Khrushchev keeps suggesting that the United States and Russia get together and solve all the problems of the world.

Only Trouble
The trouble is that secret diplomacy is effective only when nations are seeking a common objective.

Such diplomacy may even be used to achieve armistices in shooting wars which have achieved or failed in their objectives.

There are no common objectives in the present war, and its outcome is still highly uncertain. Russia is confident she can win. The Allies are determined that she shall not.

The idea of trying to stop the propaganda war and clear the atmosphere for negotiations is a persistent one. But propaganda is one form or another is the chief weapon. It cannot be given up in cold war any more than atomic deterrents can be given up in the effort to prevent hot war.

Great Powers
The idea that two or more great powers can meet and decide the fate of the world is an old one in Russia, not merely a Communist manifestation. The rest of the world lost faith in it after Versailles.

Stalin revived it at Yalta. There is testimony that he actually thought he was making a sphere-of-influence deal with the Allies, and that he was being given Eastern Europe in return for his help in the Japanese war.

Yet one of the firmest objectives of the West, one which completely bars any lasting armistice in the cold war until it has been achieved, is that all men shall yet be freed.

There are a good many things to be said in favor of secret diplomacy. It increases the possibility of compromise, since negotiators are able to modify original positions without admitting publicly they were wrong in the beginning, or without being accused of appeasement.

"Fox in mouth" statements which aggravate differences are less likely to occur and are more easily corrected.

Even some principles may be compromised for the sake of the general welfare, as they were in Korea.

The hardest fact, however, is that Russia expects to win the cold war by propaganda and by demonstration that her system is best for material progress. She will not keep secret anything which she thinks might contribute to that end.

Barr Expects Key Victories
HARRISBURG, Jan. 12 (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Joseph M. Barr says he expects a Democratic victory in the November elections for governor, U. S. senator and other offices.

In a weekend statement, Sen. Barr said he was "supremely confident" of the victory, "on the basis of our present registration totals."

Same Time
At the same time, the Democratic chairman said it was his aim to surpass Republican registration by a drive for new names in the time that remains. Registration for the May 20 primary closes March 31.

James A. Finnegan, secretary of the Commonwealth and former campaign manager for presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson, was named by Barr to head the drive.

"I am asking him to arrange through our county chairmen for the immediate appointment of county registration chairmen," Barr added.

Gap Chamber To Meet
DELAWARE WATER GAP—An important meeting of the Delaware Water Gap Chamber of Commerce will be held tonight at 8 at the Hof Brau, President Clarence Shafer reported yesterday.

Matters pertaining to the group's testimony before the Thruway hearing tomorrow will be discussed.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Speaker Sees Fight On False Grounds

PROPAGANDISTS are fighting a battle against the nomination and possible election of a Roman Catholic as president of the United States on completely false grounds, a St. Matthew's Parish Holy Name Society speaker said yesterday.

Rev. Augustine Peverada, a Holy Cross priest who is head of the history department at King's College, Wilkes-Barre, spoke before 188 Catholic and non-Catholic men attending the society's annual Communion breakfast at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

IN ALL THINGS: CHARITY — Major participants in annual Holy Communion Breakfast of St. Matthew's Parish Holy Name Society were: Seated, William Dilgins, Anthony Archer (president), Rev. John A. Esseff (moderator), Rev. Augustine J. Peverada (guest speaker) and Rev. Harold G. Durkin (pastor); standing: Thomas Verwey, Andy LeBar, John Meunier (toastmaster), Angelo Dellaria and John Sullivan (breakfast co-chairmen).

Father Peverada then cited a recent article in Time magazine quoting anti-Catholic Paul Blanshard who is merely trying to cast a cloud of suspicion on any candidate for public office who might be a Catholic.

Blanshard and others are misinterpreting the first amendment to the Constitution, he said.

"It means that the United States government shall not favor any religion over any other; that the United States should not set up any 'State church'. It did not mean the government was supposed to keep away from religion or religion away from the government," he said.

"The absolutists say the Church and the State must stay away from each other," he said. "But Catholics are citizens of both their Church and their State. Our religious principles are bound to influence our actions as citizens of the State just as sound moral principles should always influence all our actions. Religion has always been the backbone of our nation."

The speaker pointed out that two of the 29 signers of the Constitution — Thomas Fitzsimmons and Daniel Carroll — were Catholic "yet the Constitution today is being invoked to show that Catholics are not good Americans. But this cannot be true. The Constitution was meant to be a message of the brotherhood of Man under the Fatherhood of God."

Seven To Carry Protest Of Bureau

SEVEN AREA resort operators will attend a public hearing in Harrisburg tomorrow to protest recommendations of the Minimum Wage Board to the State Secretary of Labor on resort employment.

The board has already made its recommendations which include minimum salary for employees who live on and off premises and payments to apprentices.

Recommendation

It has also recommended that only one apprentice should be employed for each 10 other employees. J. Horace Strunk, executive secretary of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, pointed out last night that most resort employees are apprentices.

The delegation, chosen at a meeting of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau Friday at Pocono Manor, will include:

LeRoy Guccini, Lake Wallenpaupack, president of the bureau; John Crandall, general manager of Pocono Manor and president of the Top of the Pocono Assn.; William Malleson, general manager of Skytop Inn; Jack Shinn, Vacation Valley; Robert Ahnert, Fernwood; Elwood Huffman, Mountain Lake House; and Eric Shuchard, manager of the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Air Force Drafts Help

SHREVEPORT, La., Jan. 12 (AP) — The Air Force said today top technicians are being drafted from the Strategic Air Command in an accelerated drive to get SAC missile units operational.

Officials at nearby Barksdale Air Force Base said in some instances men are being called from higher headquarters posts by name to fill missile personnel needs.

Increase In Output

ESSEX, Jan. 12 (AP) — Individual output increased but West German coal production declined last year for the first time since World War II. The Coal Mining Assn. said the drop from 134,400,000 tons in 1956 to 133,200,000 last year resulted from giving the miners 12 additional holidays.
